At George Washington Bridge, where you enjoy a sight of the famous palisades, the steamer turns about and proceeds south to give you a view of Manhattan's magnificent skyline. Rounding the Battery you'll get a view of Ellis Island, Statue of Liberty, and Governor's Island. Then, up the East River, passing seven great bridges linking Manhattan and Long Island. Approaching Whitestone Bridge, a new shining ribbon of steel, you have a view in the distance of the New York World's Fair. Here your steamer turns and heads back for West 42nd Street Pier. ## A CORDIAL MESSAGE TO YOU

In keeping with the theme of 1940 "Travel America Year," we proudly present the second edition of HIAWATHA WORLD'S FAIR TOURS.

In our desire to provide a tour that would surpass in value any previously offered to the Northwest, we have spared absolutely no thought or effort. Our years of experience as operators of conducted all-expense tours have been of inestimable value to us in designing a tour that would meet—and exceed—the high standards which proved so gratifying to the more than 2,000 Hiawatha Tour passengers served during 1939.

We truly believe 1940 Hiawatha Tours to be the outstanding travel value of the year and we invite and urge comparison. Such features as air-conditioned coaches of the individual reclining-seat type, replacing old-fashioned "bed coaches," double-deck open-top buses for sightseeing in New York City, harbor sightseeing of New York on palatial steamers of the Hudson River Day Line, luncheon at the quaint Ye Little Hatchet Tavern in Mount Vernon, etc., are exclusives with Hiawatha Tours.

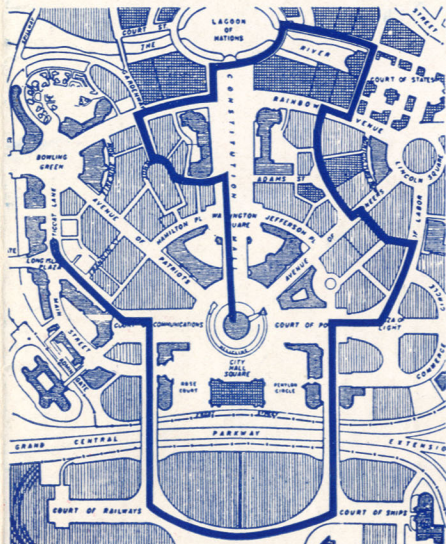

In joining our tour, you travel with a congenial group of people who share your interests. You gain complete freedom from travel worries as a member of these tours. You miss nothing; you waste no time wandering aimlessly in search of the things you are most anxious to see. No rail or hotel problems; no thumbing through guide-books to plan your sightseeing; no bother with baggage—transfer of same handled by tour escort.

An experienced travel counselor will escort each one of these tours to and from New York, thereby assuring you of the last word in friendly and helpful service.

Study these tours carefully and see how much is included at a moderate cost.
